LOCAL MATTERS.

Sun and Tide Table.

Sun rises tomorrow at 7:53 a. m. and sets at 4:38 p. m. High water at 10:47 a. m. and 11:32 p. m.

Weather Probabilities.

For this section snow or rain this afternoon and tonight. Tuesday snow, followed by clearing and colder weather; lowest temperature tonight about 32 degrees; brisk easterly, shifting to high northwesterly winds late tonight or Tuesday.

FIRES.

A small frame house belonging to Mr. Carroll Wolf, on the east side of the electric railway, a short distance northwest of this city, was destroyed by fire about 12 o'clock Saturday night. The house had been occupied by laborers. The origin of the fire is unknown.

Early yesterday afternoon Mr. R. M. McKenna, engineer at the Corby Bakery, on the west side of Lee street, between Cameron and Queen, discovered fire in the second story of the building, and was pouring from what was being used as a fire alarm, and the engineer returned quickly and used a fire extinguisher with effect, although he was in danger of suffocation from smoke. He finally used a three-inch fire hose. The fire department arrived in the meantime but the fire was found to be virtually under control. Most of the contents of the room were burned or damaged, but the fire caused no serious loss.

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS.

Fitzgerald Council, No. 459, Knights of Columbus, held a meeting yesterday afternoon at St. Mary's Hall, at which time the first degree of the order was conferred on a class of candidates.

The council has arranged to give the second degree during the month. Arrangements also are being made to give the third or major degree of the order New Year's day.

Members of the order have been notified that the fourth degree, which is a side degree, will be conferred February 22 next. This degree will be given either in Alexandria or at Martinsburg, W. Va.

This council at its next regular business meeting, which will be held December 14, will nominate and elect officers for the ensuing year.

CHARITY BALL.

There is only one gift in the world above price—that is love. Those who cannot appreciate love cannot be helped by any substitute. When charity, such as the Elks bestow upon the needy ones, manifests itself, particularly during the Christmas holidays, one realizes that life is still worth the living, no matter how desolate the home or how dreary the life. The proceeds of the Charity Ball to be given on Wednesday night at the Elks Home will be devoted to the filling of the grand baskets which will cheer the hearts of the needy ones on Christmas. That it will be liberally patronized by the Elks and their friends goes without saying. The committee in charge have made all necessary arrangements and a pleasant evening is promised all who attend. The Elks' Home, it is predicted, will not be large enough to accommodate those who wish in this way to help a most worthy cause.

THE WEATHER.

The weather yesterday was rainy and threatening. Cloudy conditions existed at an early hour this morning, and snow began to fly and continued the remainder of the day. Snow visited yesterday Baltimore and the surrounding country, but, owing to the medium temperature which existed throughout the day, the flakes melted as fast as they reached the ground. The storm was a general one, extending over the east, middle west, the lakes, New England state and the Atlantic ocean; but the fall was very light.

Low temperatures will prevail over the country east of the Rocky mountains during the greater part of the coming week, according to the prediction of the Weather Bureau.

CHURCH ON WHEELS.

The little frame building, on north Columbus street, in which the members of the Second Baptist Church worship, is probably destined to attain notoriety as great as the "Little Church Around the Corner" in New York, which attracted the attention of the country over forty years ago when the pastor of a fashionable church in the metropolis refused to allow the remains of Actor Holland to be brought in, but directed those in charge of the funeral to proceed to the "little church around the corner." The Alexandria church is still on wheels, but that fact did not deter the members from entering it and having services yesterday. Now that all legal obstacles have been removed the work of placing the building in the opposite side of the street will, it is said, be completed today.

ORGAN RECITAL.

Mr. Edgar Priest, A. R. M. C. M., organist and choirmaster of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Washington, will give an organ recital in the M. E. Church South in this city next Friday evening, at 8 o'clock. He will be assisted by Mr. Kenneth Ogden. There will be no admission charged, but a silver offering will be taken at the door. The proceeds are for the church furnishing society.

SUNDAY SCHOOL WORKERS.

The meeting of the Sunday School Workers' Association in the First Presbyterian Church yesterday afternoon was well-attended and enjoyed by all present. The address of Rev. J. M. Holmes, pastor of the Methodist Protestant Church, on "How to Study the Bible," was much appreciated. Another meeting of the association will be held on the second Sunday in January, at which time officers will be elected.

MEMORIAL SERVICES.

Interesting and Impressive Services of Alexandria Lodge, Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks—Thrilling Address of Councilman J. F. Birrell and Hon. R. T. W. Duke—Excellent Musical Programme Well-rendered.

The new hall of Alexandria Lodge of Elks was a place of beauty last night. The committee having the memorial services in charge had anticipated everything which could have in any manner added interest to the occasion, and the large audience was more than pleased with their evening's experience and the members of the organization felt an honest pride in the appreciation manifested by their numerous guests.

This was the first time the memorial services had been held in the new home of the lodge, and the auditorium had been beautifully and tastefully decorated for the occasion. Flags and potted plants and ferns were in profusion and the many electric bulbs brilliantly illuminated everything.

About eight o'clock the orchestra rendered an overture, after which the members of the lodge entered the auditorium and took their places on the stage, which had been tastefully decorated. A "clock," ready to toll eleven, was a conspicuous object, as were sixteen white stars, representing the members of the lodge who have joined the great majority since the institution of the order of Elks in Alexandria.

After prayer by Rev. W. J. Morton, rector of Christ Church, Exalted Ruler Howard W. Smith made a few fitting remarks, and the opening ceremonies followed. The chairs of the officers had been taken from the lodge room and placed in position in the auditorium, and those filling them vied with the exalted ruler in the opening ceremonies.

An impressive feature of the opening services was the calling of the roll of the sixteen deceased members by Secretary Donnelly. As a name was called a star blazed forth. This was continued until the entire sixteen were shining brilliantly as was also the improvised clock. They continued to shine forth throughout the ceremonies, thus signifying that, while absent in the flesh, they were present in the spirit.

After an invocation by Rev. Edgar Carpenter, chaplain of the lodge, Mr. J. F. Birrell, who was the first speaker, advanced and made a short but interesting address on the principles of the Elks' Charity, Justice, Brotherhood and Fidelity. He said they were broad and liberal and the organization had no creed under its tutelage.

The institution was one which embraced Jew and Gentile, representatives of all persuasions. The order taught the fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man, as well as the sacredness of the home, the love of country and of the Creator. The Elks, he said, had an altar at which prayer was offered. An American flag and a Bible were kept upon it and every candidate placed his hands upon the sacred volume in taking his obligation to be true to the teachings of the institution. The Elks proclaim justice, and the same scales were used for the king and peasant alike. Brotherly love, a key note of the order, was being manifested in every place in the world where a Lodge of Elks exists, and while Alexandria members of the order were honoring their dead similar services were being held at the same hour elsewhere. Mr. Birrell's allusion to the deceased members of the order was appropriate and touching. He said that while to us their names had set, they were shining in greater brilliancy on another shore. Their faults had been written in sand, but their virtues had been engraved upon enduring tablets. He closed by turning to the members of the lodge who were seated upon the stage and made practical suggestions to those who, so far, have escaped the scythe of the silent reaper, and uttered words of encouragement, as well as kindly rules of life which should animate all. The God of hope would be with all. Mr. Birrell was general in his references to history and general literature, all of which were well applied.

After certain musical features of the programme, Hon. R. T. W. Duke arose and made an exceedingly interesting address. The speaker is not a stranger in Alexandria, and all who have ever heard him are glad of other opportunities. He was at his best and for nearly half an hour he thrilled and edified his audience. He said the dead do not need us; they are beyond our hope. But we have need of the dead, as in the study of their lives we are as pigmies upon the shoulders of giants. There is, the speaker said, no such thing as death, and were there such a thing as annihilation, the ceremonies in which the company was engaged would be a cruel mockery. The great teacher had told the Sadducees of his day that God was the God of the living. The company had gathered to acknowledge life, and he had not one word of sorrow upon his lips. He often heard people admonish others to prepare for death, and he had the patience with such, even the high-pitched expressions to such words. We all had better prepare to live—that is our mission. The speaker said each age has its burdens, and as time goes on each generation supposes its burdens the most serious. This would continue until a perfect man would meet a perfect God. Mr. Duke spoke of the sacredness of the home and the home altar, and said the home was at present sacrificed to the apartment house and flat. Should the home eventually become a thing of the past, the American nation will be lost. We can have no good men or women if we have no good homes, but the divorce court will become more and more in evidence. Mr. Duke in his speech took a long range, speaking of modern business methods by which departments were making slaves of men heretofore their own masters. The remedy, he thought, is in individual manhood and individual responsibility. He made quotations from the Bible and advised all to perform his or her duty in life as though the world depended upon them individually. He said each member of the race had his or her own duties to perform, duties which no one else could fulfill. Mr. Duke closed by urging upon his hearers to be independent in home, business, politics and religion.

DEATH OF MRS. RUST.

The entire community was grieved and shocked this morning when the news of the death of Mrs. David N. Rust was received. It was known that she had recently undergone a serious operation at the George Washington Hospital in Washington, but until a sudden change for the worst took place last night, her physicians were most hopeful of her recovery. Mrs. Rust was a rare type of christian womanhood, faithful in every relation of life, gentle, earnest and truly without guile. In her home, in her church and in her neighborhood her loss cannot be estimated. Her husband and children have the sincerest sympathy of their many friends in this their great sorrow. Before her marriage Mrs. Rust was Miss Mary Look, daughter of Rev. Thomas B. Look, of Amherst county, and besides her husband she leaves six children—three daughters and three sons. Her funeral will take place from Christ Church on Thursday morning next at 11 o'clock.

BASKETBALL.

The Y. M. S. L. "Speed Boys" and the Ingram Memorial Club, of Washington, played an exciting game of basketball in the Amory Hall Saturday night. The "Speed Boys" won by the score of 29 to 14.

The home boys were never in danger of defeat during the evening, and, as some of the visiting teams, when they are aware that they have met their superiors in the art of goal shooting, passing of the ball between members of the team, and many other tricks in the game, resort to rough and tumble tactics, and in order to defend themselves and keep from losing, they "rubes," as they are termed by some of the "experts," show that they are right at home in such emergencies. They have made wonderful improvement in playing the game, and the difficult ball tossing of Toomey and Erskine won the applause of the large crowd.

It is to be hoped that the many admirers of indoor athletics will visit the Amory Hall when games are announced to take place, as a large crowd is sure to please the players and make them give an exhibition of the finest class of basketball.

ROBBERIES.

Thieves last night robbed the bungalow belonging to Messrs. Harry Fleischmann and Erving Schwarzmant at Collinwood Beach, a short distance below this city.

A chewing gum machine which had been taken from the southwest corner of Wilkes and Pitt streets and lifted off of its contents, was found last night on the railroad track a short distance east of the store.

At an early hour this morning Mr. F. L. Entwistle was awakened by a thief who was endeavoring to remove a chewing gum box from the front of his store, on the east side of Fairfax street, near Wilkes. Mr. Entwistle came to the window and frightened the would-be thief off.

ACCOSTED BY A FOOTPAD.

Mr. Richard Garvey reports that he was held up last night in the vicinity of Braddock Heights by a man who asked him to stop. Mr. Garvey told the man he had no reason to stop, when the footpad replied, "I guess you can stop." At this juncture Mr. Garvey drew a pistol and pointing the weapon at the man pulled the trigger. The weapon, however, hung fire, and the highwayman took to his heels. Mr. Garvey could not tell whether the man was white or colored.

At this meeting final arrangements will be made for the annual oyster supper to be given by this organization next Thursday evening, and it is earnestly desired that all members attend.

GUNNER FINED.

Elbert Wood, colored, was arrested Saturday afternoon in this city by Officer Beach and locked up on a charge of unlawful gunning near Accotink, Fairfax county. He was later turned over to Game Warden Hayne. Wood was taken before Justice Wright this morning and fined $5 and $4.80 costs.

The Y. M. S. L. Reserves will line up against the last five of the Western High School, of Washington, at Armory Hall tomorrow night at 8:15.

The High School lads come here with the reputation of being the best fives of their weight in the district.

SMITH'S PICTURES.

When the first of Smith's pictures was shown Saturday night there was standing room only. This proves that the people of Alexandria appreciate fine pictures. Tonight's show will be still more attractive, presenting three reels of the world's best pictures. First, "Waiter No. 5," (a story of Russian despotism.) This is a beautiful story and is true to life, being one of the best pictures made by the Biograph Company. "Musician's Love Story" will be the second. This is a strong picture, as is also "A Fortunate Misfortune." All pictures shown by Smith are carefully selected and nothing but the best are presented. The hall is large and warm.

The Old Turnpikes.

The first great American highway, that between New York and Philadelphia, was long known as "the old York road." Its construction in 1711 was an example which led the colonists at other points along the Atlantic seaboard to construct similar roads where there were no water routes. They were usually built by chartered companies and were called turnpikes or toll roads. Pennsylvania, Connecticut and New Jersey had many roads of the kind. The first macadam road in America was built in 1792 between Philadelphia and Lancaster. In 1811 there were said to be 4,500 miles of chartered turnpikes in New England and New York. During the next twenty years the national government spent many millions of dollars in constructing great highways, but the plan of 1837 and the building of railroads and canals put an end to that branch of government work—YOUTH'S Companion.

Cape of Good Hope.

The Cape of Good Hope lies at a considerable distance from the end of South Africa and is, in fact, the middle of the three promontories, severally inconspicuous, which jointly terminate a slender peninsula, some twenty miles in length, forming the barrier between False bay and the Atlantic ocean on the west. These three headlands, lying near together and commonly undivided on a map of moderate scale, are locally designated Cape Point. It was here that Bartholomew Diaz first encountered in full force the prevalent southeasterly gales and denounced the rugged, threatening, threefold promontory under the sounding appellation of the Cape of Storms, to be afterward rechristened by pious, trustful hearts the Cape of Good Hope.

Fooled the Poor Savages.

Robert Louis Stevenson used to relate the following amusing story told him by a south sea trader. He had been in the habit of carrying all sorts of tinned meats, which the natives bought with avidity. Each tin was branded with a colored picture—a cow for beef, a sheep for mutton and a fish for sardines. It happened that the tin which furnished the mutton thought it a good plan to alter its labels, that its goods might be more easily distinguished from the others. The mark chosen was the figure of a frock coated Stiggins-like individual in a chimney pot hat. The natives at once came to the conclusion that the tin contained potted missionary, and there was a great run on the new line of goods.

The Poor English Landlord.

I have been a property owner for nearly forty years and during that period have lost from depreciation $25,000, from empty houses $10,000, and from defaulting tenants over $5,000, a total loss of over $40,000. During this forty years I have never known a defaulting tenant honest enough to pay a shilling off the arrears when he was removed from the neighborhood—Better in London Telegraph.

Beer & Coffee
--Their Opposite Effects!

Caffeine (or theine), the alkaloid principle of coffee, is a drug detrimental to the human system. Its evil effects are most noticeable to many persons after drinking a cup or two of coffee in the evening. They can't sleep. Directly opposite to this is the effect of a glass or two of taken during the evening. It soothes and quiets the nerves, producing sweet, refreshing sleep. We are purchasing Hofbrau beer as a substitute for coffee and would like to have you try it. An order to us will bring you promptly a case of pints or quarts as you desire.
